

Dec. 1, 2014

Hello Wheat Montana Customers!

Wheat Montana wants to thank you for your continued support and business. We hope you all had a successful 2014 and are looking forward to an exciting 2015.

After several customer requests and some feedback from inspections etc. we've decided to make a change on our lot number format for our bulk packaging. In the past we've used a Julian date format, which has been confusing and most of the time required a call to our customer service department for deciphering. Beginning Jan. 1, 2015 we will start labeling all of our mill products with a Best By date. This date will be easy to read and will be 12 months from package date on bulk bags and retail packaged products. The date will be 60 months from package date on the 6 gallon food storage pails.

We believe this change will help you as distributors and customers better understand the stability and freshness of our products. We will post this change on our website, facebook page, e-mail it out, and mail it if necessary. Those of you that receive COA's with your shipments will notice the change on those forms as well.

Please feel free to contact myself or Michelle if you have any questions regarding this policy change.
